

I am against rules that would require manufacturers to make equipment field repairable. Radios can already be repaired by swapping boards. Requiring lower level repairs would increase size, and cost, and inhibit advances in the equipment by manufacturers.

For those that want user repairability, the market provides products now.